Regás

SINCE 1821

Regas ceramics are traditional makers of Spanish terracotta since 1821. Using Natural Spanish clay combined with water, the terracotta is baked at extremely high temperatures, shaped and fired with glazes that can withstand the rigours of the kitchen.

An extensive collection of high quality ceramics with a contrast of colours from casseroles to Tagines, this versatile ceramic can be used for direct heat, oven and microwave.

Elegant for any table, Regas cookware holds and distributes heat perfectly, from oven to table perfect for tapas style modern dining.

As with any specialty cookware, it's important to take care of your ceramic cookware. To protect the terracotta, we recommend soaking the product in water for 6 hours before use.

To create the flavours of the Mediterranean or creating your own masterpiece, Regas terracotta cookware will turn any culinary creation into a work of art.

These traditional terracotta tapas dishes, produced using traditional Spanish ceramic methods perfect for oven-to-table cooking, and the perfect size for small tapas serves.

Crafted from traditional Spanish terracotta, the exotic shape of our Tagines are the easiest way to create a Mediterranean feel to the table.

Cooking using lower temperatures will result in magnificently tender meats and the gentle way the tagine distributes heat is ideal for slow braising. The styling of these tagine is one that remains true to the essential shape and function of the traditional design but makes an elegant and contemporary presentation at the same time.
